NOTE

At present, there are 27 holes open for play. Each hole has its own characteristic shape and unique view that offers a wide variety and separate challenge to novice and professional alike. Fairways are lined with beautiful oil palm trees and other similar species, the emphasis being on evergreen in order to keep the course in pristine condition throughout the year. Paspalum fairways and tees surround Tifdwarf greens: The rough is cut to a short length in enabling ball-searching to be kept to a minimum. Featuring rolling fairways and large undulating greens, with many bunkers and water hazards to catch errant shots; the Long Thanh Golf Club is the epitome of golf in Asia. The third 9 holes have been opened in October 2005 and we are really excited regarding the design by Mr. Ron Fream of the internationally renowned Golfplan Company. This is a tougher 9 holes than the other two loops, having been built on a former rice paddy field; it features water on virtually every hole. Again we have the rolling fairways, deep-faced bunkers and pure variety, but the emphasis for the golfer this time is on accuracy! It will provide our players with a whole new set of challenges, but with many tees it will be eminently playable for even the shorter hitters!
